Tackle Pink For the Cure Women's Football Clinic

August 22nd at Mahoney Field at 6:15 - 8:15, Senior Football Moms 2010, will be hosting the first Tackle Pink For the Cure Football Clinic For Women. This is an event that will help women (of all ages) to gain a better understanding of the game of football while promoting breast cancer awareness. Proceeds from the event will be donated to Mayo Clinic Oncology Department to purchase a chemo treatment chair and Fairmont Football. The evening will start out at 6:15 with registration and shopping at various displays of women's items such as jewelry, purses, cooking, cleaning supplies, candles, inspirational items, and more. Coaches will introduce themselves, explain their role in the game of football, and demonstrate some examples. Those women that want to learn some of the simple drills of the game, will then proceed to the field. There will be 8 stations set up, those that want to try the drills can participate, & others may just watch. This will hopefully help the women to better understand different aspects of the game. Each station will last 5 minutes and rotate. After the drills, a team picture will be taken of all ladies at the clinic in the middle of the football field. After the drills, more time for visiting with coaches and shopping. We will have special guest speakers sharing their thoughts on breast cancer and the journey one takes through recovery. Door Prize drawings will begin immediately after our speakers. There will be special Tackle Pink Clothing available for sale at the event with proceeds going to purchase a new chemo chair here in Fairmont. Brochures are available at the Banks, Grocery stores, Mayo Clinic Health System in Fairmont, FHS Athletic office, at various businesses throughout Fairmont. This event is for women of all ages.
